

I've been informed of yet another clear example of right-wingers using public airwaves to further their interests. Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for their profits and riches than what really concerns ordinary people.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to break the monopolists' hold over the media, and not let them brainwash us with their lies.
